LEAD PENCIL CAUSED DEATH.

"Jackie" Sent to the Unknown By a Jab of the Weapon.

The stub of a lead pencil was the weapon which brought death to Albert Curran, the Jackie gunboat Hancock. Curran had obtained a leave of absence to visit his sister in Brooklyn, N. Y.

In a saloon near home he became engaged with John Schmidt, an acquaintance, in a lively discussion as to the merits of the battleships of Germany and the United States. Schmidt declares Curran struck him. Schmidt said he did not realize that he had a lead pencil in his clenched hand when, resenting Curran's attack, he struck back. The blow caught Curran on the neck and the pencil pierced his jugular vein.

Joseph J. McGrady of Denver was awarded a contract to haul county pupils from Long Station and Denver to Crescent city at $39.95 per month. He was the lowest bidder.

Her Brother

By ROBERT L. JAYNES

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

When I was keepin' store in Arizona a young woman come in on the stage one evenin' and put up at the tavern. The next mornin' she come into my store and tole me she'd come out from the east to find employment. She couldn't stenograph or typewrite. If she could she needn't have come away from home, but she could keep a cash account, sell goods and do any ordinary work about the store. She was a mighty trim little body, and I tole her she'd better git married and let the other feller do the work; but she lafled and said I tuk two to make a match. I tuk her in for help, thinkin' if she turned out as well as she looked I wouldn't mind makin' the other one of the two.

But it soon appeared that she wasn't goin' to turn out as well as she looked. First thing I knowed a feller came into the store to see her that looked like a road agent. They seemed to be mighty familiar and did a lot o' talkin' in the back o' the store while I was engaged waitin' on a customer in the front. When the feller went out I said to the young woman, says I: "Rosy"—that was her name—"if you're enbowed with a gang o' robbers the sooner you git out the better."

"Oh, that feller was all right!" she said.

"Who is he?"

"Why, he's my brother."

"Your brother?" I says, turnin' away from her contemptuously. "If that's the kind of family y' belong to I don't think much of yer stock."

There was nothin' more said about it at the time, but I done up a lot o' thinkin'. Fust off I thort I'd better give the young woman the grand bounce, but I didn't know whether she was up to anything or not, and if she wasn't I didn't want to lose her. She wasn't so much up about the store—I didn't have so very much for her to do—but I'd got a hankerin' after her.

Well, the next thing that happened looked kind o' suspicious. I was layin' one night on a settle in the back o' the store when I heered somethin' rattlin' at the front door. I jist reached back under a pillar, tuk my weapon and let drive through the panel. I heered a yell an' goin' to the door, listened. Not hearin' anything more, I opened the door and by the light of a match I struck saw drops o' blood leadin' away. I calclated I'd hit some un' who was goin' to rob the store.

Wal, this thing comin' so soon after the visit of Rosy's brother, I didn't know what to think about it. I noticed when I tole her about it she looked kinder queer.

"Hope he warn't yer brother," I said to her, an' I thort she was goin' to faint. Seem' it bothered her to talk about it I didn't say nothin' more, and after awhile she righted, though for a few days she didn't look very cheerful. But one day the feller that she looked like came in. He looked kind o' white in the face. He talked with Rosy awhile an' went out.

"Reckon yer brother's been sick," I says, a-sympathizin' with her.

"Yes," she says, "he has."

"What's he do for a livin'?"

"He aint doin' nothin' jist now. I'm tryin' to git a place for him. Trade's mighty broke lately. Don't yer think y' need a shippin' clerk?"

"I don't think I do."

I wondered if she thort I was soft enough to believe the feller was her brother and out of employment. I reckoned he wasn't employed, except when he was holdin' up a coach or somethin' like that. And I reckoned she'd have to do a lot o' coaxin' to git me to take in a man to work who'd tried to rob me and I'd winked when he was startin' in to do it.

But we men are kind o' quar' as well as the women. One day the feller come into the store in a hurry. Rosy was there and turned pale. He said somethin' to her quick, and she p'inted under the counter. He ducked jist in time to dodge the sheriff, who come runnin' in with a weepin' in one hand and a pair o' bracelets in t'other. Rosy stood up agin the counter right where the feller wor hid.

"Emy one come in here?" asked the sheriff.

Now, I'm a-goin' to explain why we men is quar' as well as the women. Rosy she give me jist one look. She might as well have sent a few ounces o' lead at me, so far as my doin' enny interference was concerned.

"Hain't seen no one," I says, talkin' perrot-like, jist as Rosy wanted me to.

"Singular; I thort I had him cornered."

He was out in a jiffy, and when the danger was past Rosy put the feller in a back office I had my boots in and called me in too.

"You're a trump!" she says.

"And yer brother's the knave," I says, replyin'.

She could sca'ce keep from laffin' at my joke. But she didn't. She tole me the feller wor roly her brother, that he'd gone bad and she'd come out to reclaim him. She had got him to promise to go east with her, but she couldn't get him off unless I'd help her instead o' givin' 'em away. I tole her I'd do all I could on condition she'd come back and run her part o' the store and me, too, as she'd been a-doin' of it. She promised, and I got 'em away safe.

She's back now, runnin' both me and the store.

HER BODY EATEN BY BUZZARDS.

Aged White Woman Found in Simm's Creek Wednesday.

John Register and E. W. Roberts discovered the body of an aged white woman floating in Simm's creek some seven miles west of Bostwick Wednesday morning. They immediately notified the sheriff's office and Deputy Hagan and Justice John E. Marshall went to the scene. A jury composed of R. A. Varr, T. R. Livingston, M. Culpepper, E. W. Glisson, M. Glisson and J. Dyess, was sworn.

The body was found to be that of Mrs. Frony Brooks, 70 years of age. She was last seen alive at Bostwick on Monday the 5th inst. The body was badly eaten by buzzards and cat fish—both arms being gone. Her clothes were hanging on a limb close to the water's edge. Mrs. Brooks was a county charge and slightly demented. The jury returned a verdict of accidental drowning. It is probable that the body had been in the water more than a week.

The County Commissioners.

S. A. Baker of Seville and Robt. L. Smith of Denver urged the opening of a direct public road in the southern part of the county to connect with the Volusia public road, and Mr. Baker offered to give all the timber, clay and sand necessary to build said road in Putnam Co., and also said W. H. McBride of Seville would also aid in the road's construction.

F. E. Reeder and John Dallow of Welaka wanted shell instead of clay used in constructing roads on the peninsula. They also stated that they had raised money by private subscription for work on road from Welaka to Porter's Landing, and because of this fact asked the board to pay a bill to the Wilson Cypress Co. of $77.40 for lumber used in making a ferry landing and bridges. This was granted.

A request was made to place J. C. Phillips of Georgetown on the poor farm and the matter was referred to Sheriff Kennerly. Nicholas Funk's request that he be paid for caring for his brother, a county charge, was turned down.

The contract for repairs on the Rice Creek bridge was awarded to J. E. Lucas and his bond fixed at $250. The pension of Mrs. Helen Woods was increased to $5 per month.

The county treasurer was asked to correct his books, wherein he had failed to apportion a part of the tax money received from the railroad to the sinking fund for county bonds.

Mary Howard and her daughter Fanny were discharged from the poor farm and again granted pauper pensions of $2 per month each.

The sheriff was authorized to hire a house keeper for the poor farm and to give power to place any pauper pensioner on the farm whom he thought it would be the part of economy so to place.

The petition of L. L. Moody to have his name placed on the ticket as an independent candidate for County Commissioner from District No. 2, was granted.

Warrant No. 1292 for the sum of $306.91 was ordered cancelled. Minutes of the board don't show who is to be disappointed.

Warrants were ordered drawn in favor of the trustees for county bonds as follows: from General Fund $6,447.74; from Road fund, $249.18; from Bridge Fund, $249.18, as part payment of amount due to the Interest and Sinking Funds.

A resolution was adopted arranging with the F. E. C. R'y. concerning and fixing the right of way and county road at East Palatka, in which the county gets $500 from the railroad.

The sheriff was instructed to keep all cattle and other stock off the court house lawn.

A Credit to Palatka.

F. J. Fearnside of the Fearnside Clothing Co., of this city, is at present in New York selecting an immense stock of fall and winter clothing for his firm here. While in the eastern markets, Mr. Fearnside will visit the famous clothing plants of the A. B. Kirschbaum Co. of Philadelphia, The Stein-Block Co. of Rochester, and Schloss Bros., of Baltimore, and will purchase the very newest styles in colors and designs of men's up-to-date hand-made clothing.

Mr. Fearnside has also arranged to visit the great shoe makers of Massachusetts, including Campello, Brockton and Boston, the largest shoe centers of the world, where he will purchase all the new fall styles from the famous houses of Ralston Health Shoe Co., Korret-Shoe, W. L. Douglas and Hanan.

It is a well-known fact that the company over, given power to place any pauper pensioner on the farm whom he thought it would be the part of economy so to place.

The up-to-date methods of the Fearnside Clothing Company are in keeping with the "Go Ahead" spirit of Palatka and is indeed a credit to the city.

Aged Negroes Murdered

Sarah Powell, an aged colored woman, was found murdered in her cabin near Callahan. The woman had been beaten over the head with a Winchester rifle, and her body bore ugly gashes made with an axe. The disappearance of Miller Powell, husband of the woman, has led the police to suspicion him of the crime. Powell, who is 60 years of age, lived with his wife in a cabin in the turpentine quarters, near the village. The door of the cabin was found wide open by negroes on their way to work. One entered and discovered the dead body of the woman lying on the floor. The room was splattered with blood and showed signs of a terrible struggle.

W. I. Horning, after shooting a steer in the head near Savannah, Ga., rushed to it to cut its throat. He had a long butcher knife in his back pocket and as he reached the steer's head he felt the knife piercing his body. It is feared he will die.

ANOTHER BIG CIGAR FACTORY

Will Locate in Palatka—Have Leased Quarters in Florida Southern Building.

Balbin Bros. of Tampa, manufacturers of Havana cigars, and with prospect of employing some 200 hands, secured a lease from the A. C. L. R'y this week for the north end of the Florida Southern R'y building on Water street, next to the W. A. Merryday Co.

This makes the third large cigar manufacturing firm to locate in Palatka during the past month.

And the prospects are good for as many more.

If more don't come it won't be the fault of the Palatka board of trade.

Balbin Bros. have not moved their factory here yet, but they have completed arrangements for its removal.

Jose Escalante & Co. of Tampa, who moved into the south half of the same building last Friday, are already settled and at work. The firm now has some 75 men employed and is adding to its force daily.

Corral, Wodiska & Co., the first Tampa factory to move here, and which secured the old Fry opera house building, has about the same force.

Mr. Wodiska told the News that his men were all very well pleased with Palatka and that the coming of other factories, giving employment to a large number of Cuban cigar makers, was adding to their pleasure.

He said that he favored, and believed the scheme of securing a piece of land on the outskirts of Palatka for a cigar manufacturers suburb, was entirely practical, and he believed that with a little effort would result.

Mr. Wodiska is most severe in his denunciation of the Tampa authorities, whom he declares are doing nothing to prevent the frequent outrages upon cigar makers of that city, whose only offense consists of a desire, and an attempt to leave that city where they are denied the right to work by the hoodlums of the city, or to seek employment elsewhere.

For instance, the Tampa Tribune of Monday in telling of various Sunday assaults and shootings in that city gives this example:

"Police headquarters were notified at 2:45 in the afternoon that O. Gras, a Cuban, about 45 years of age, had been assaulted by three men at Ninth avenue and Nineteenth street. The patrol was sent to an Ybor City drug store, where Gras was taken after the assault. Thence he was carried to the police station, where his wounds were dressed and he was then carried again in the patrol to his residence, Tenth avenue between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets."

"All his bruises were confined to the back part of his body, these bearing evidence that he had been kicked. He stated also that three men, armed with pistols, went to his residence to see him and that to escape these, he jumped from a window and ran down the street, the same trio later overtaking him, assuring him they meant no harm to him and after walking with him a short distance, knocking him down and beating him."

"He believes he was assaulted because he had stated he intended going to Palatka to work in a factory at that place, a branch of Corral, Wodiska & Co. Since the assault, it is understood he has changed his mind and desires to go south to either Key West or Havana to seek employment. None of his wounds are of a serious nature."

This is only one of scores of assaults which have occurred in Tampa during the past two weeks, and illustrates the difficulty the new factories in this city are encountering in their efforts to get their men out of Tampa.

The strike of the Tampa cigar makers for the recognition of the union on the part of the Manufacturers Association. And the assaults are made by those interested in holding the men in line and to prevent their working in "open shops." Open shops are those that make no discrimination between union and non-union men.

The factories that have come to Palatka are of the open shop variety.

Death of Mrs. J. H. Reese.

A telegram to Dr. E. S. Crill on Wednesday forenoon from E. Perry Ross, announced the death of his mother, Mrs. J. H. Reese, at Nashville, Tenn., on Monday. There were no particulars except to say that the funeral would be held at Pensacola on Wednesday.

The Pensacola Evening News of Tuesday had no further particulars except that the funeral would take place at Christ church at 9:30 Wednesday and that the interment would be in the family lot at St. Johns cemetery.

Mrs. Reese was a daughter of the late Gov. E. A. Perry, and was born in Pensacola. In her young womanhood she was a social leader and a most brilliant woman. Her first husband was Dr. Ross, a prominent physician of Pensacola, who died some years ago. Her only child is Mr. E. Perry Ross, a clerk in the East Florida Savings and Trust Co., and on whose account she had made Palatka her home during much of the past year. Mr. Ross was away on his vacation, and that he was with his mother at the time of death is probable from the fact that he accompanied her body to Pensacola for the last sad rites.

Sheriff Gets Front Room.

In the assignment of office rooms in the new County Court House, Sheriff Kennerly was given a back room. He didn't like it, though he moved in. The county commissioners took the front room. But this has been changed, and the sheriff's office will now front the hall from the county clerk's office. Sheriff Kennerly will move next week, and the sessions of the county commissioners will hereafter be held in the room assigned to the grand jury.

A Beautiful Street Light.

The beautiful street lamp just installed by John T. Bond for M. Sauer, on central Lemon street, is a beauty and throws the light for blocks around.

This corner on Lemon street has long needed a street light—so Mr. Sauer, in connection with his beautifully lighted pool room, has made this improvement.

John T. Bond of the Sunlight Lighting Company, is agent for these famous store and street lamps and would be pleased to correspond with stores, towns and cities for lighting propositions.

Every lamp is positively guaranteed.

Before and After.

The woman at first sits down and waits for a husband; in the end she sits up and waits for him.

GETTING READY FOR BIG BUSINESS

Beach & Miller Line Preparing to Handle Big Winter Trade.

On the 23d inst. the steamer Crescent will go on the ways for its annual overhauling, which will not require more than two weeks. In the meantime Mrs. Mary Scott Miller, general manager of the line, has chartered the Attiquin, a trim and comfortable freight and passenger steamer to take the place of the Crescent so that patrons of the line will in no way be discontinued.

For nearly 30 years the B. & M. Line has had a daily line of boats between Crescent City and Jacksonville, and has been the only line furnishing a daylight service between Jacksonville, Palatka and Crescent City. The steamer Crescent is one of the fastest, most comfortable passenger and freight steamers on the river, and the reliability and general excellence of its service has made this line a favorite with Palatka people.

The line is not only a Florida, but a Putnam county concern, and for this, and the fact that its service is unexcelled, it does and should receive a very large proportion of the river freight business to and from this city.

During the coming season the B. & M. Line will carry out a very large proportion of the orange crop on Lake Crescent, and intermediate river landings; it was to supply the demand for such a service that the line was established, and from that time to the present it has always been a popular line with our orange growers.

In anticipation of an extra large business this season, Mr. A. G. Brewer has installed an agent at the head office of the line in Crescent City. Mr. Brewer has had many years of experience in the transportation business and will no doubt prove a most valuable acquisition to the line.

Palatka merchants and all who contend for the principle of home patronage, should not only take a special pride in this line, but show their appreciation for its reliable service by throwing their business to it.

Killed by A. C. L. Train.

The section foreman at Lundy station three miles south of Palatka on the A. C. L. R'y, discovered a colored man lying in the ditch alongside the railway track a mile south of Lundy station at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning. He reported the matter to his railway superiors and to Sheriff Kennerly and immediate arrangements were made to bring the man to this city. He was not on arrival by Dr. Geo. E. Welch, and was still alive, though in a state of coma. Both the man's legs were broken and he was otherwise badly bruised. Blood was coming from his ears. His skull was fractured. The man lived about an hour and a half after arrival in Palatka. Justice Marshall was notified and held an inquest, at which the testimony showed that the man was—

John Roberts General, 22 years of age and an employee of Campbell's turpentine still at Yvelterville. He had left there on Monday and spent a part of the day at East Palatka where he played ball. His mother and step-father live at Lundy and he had, it is thought, started to visit them. He is said to have been under the influence of liquor.

Testimony also showed that he was hit by a north bound freight train about midnight Monday. He was thrown some 15 feet, heading into the ditch.

Dr. Welch stated that death was caused by hemorrhage of brain caused by fracture of skull.

The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the facts.

Automobile Badly Burned.

The Buick auto owned by Luther Drakeford the Lemon street barber, was badly injured by fire at midnight Tuesday, and under circumstances that point to incendiarism. Luther had locked the machine in his garage at the corner of Reid and Tenth Sts., and personally saw that it was all right. At midnight the night policeman saw fire in the garage, gave the alarm and notified the owner. The fire was extinguished before the machine was destroyed, though the top was burned up and the body badly injured. The mechanism appears to be unimpaired, but only the timely discovery of the fire prevented a very serious loss to this worthy colored man. Luther is thoroughly satisfied that the machine was set afire.

DEATH CLAIMS MR. I. L. ELLWOOD.

Was One of Nations Great Capitalists.

For Thirty Years a Winter Resident of Palatka.

A telegram to Mr. S. J. Kennerly received Monday morning announced that Mr. I. L. Ellwood died at his home in Dekalb, Ill., Sunday evening.

The news occasioned no surprise here for it was known that for more than a week Mr. Ellwood had been in a most critical condition from paralysis.

It is not the fact that Mr. Ellwood was one of the nation's wealthiest men, with a fortune conservatively estimated at more than $50,000,000, that occasioned genuine sorrow in Palatka over the news of his passing, but it was the fact that this city had lost a genial and kindly gentleman who for 30 years has maintained a winter home here, and who, with family, had enjoyed association with Palatka people and who had ever been a staunch friend of the city.

It is said that the death of Mrs. Ellwood some two months ago hastened Mr. Ellwood's demise. He never recovered from the blow.

It is said that Mr. Ellwood began life as a fortune teller, and that the nucleus of his subsequent great fortune was his invention of barbed-wire for fencing, which he long manufactured, and which interests were subsequently merged into the American Steel and Wire Co., in which he was largely interested up to some three years ago.

Mr. Ellwood was a large stock holder in the Chicago & Northwestern, and numerous other great railroads, as well as to banking and other finance and trust companies. He owned several hundred thousand acres of Texas ranch lands. Those who know him best say that his charity was of the kind that is "not puffed up," and that he gave liberally and without ostentation, or any kind of show.

Mr. Ellwood became interested in Palatka 30 years ago. In 1882 he built the home now occupied by S. J. Kennerly. This he subsequently offered for sale because of the location of the Florida Southern R'y track on Main street, when Mr. Kennerly became the purchaser. Mr. Ellwood a year or two later purchased the land and erected his present home on Madison street. Here Mr. and Mrs. Ellwood, surrounded by members of their family, made their winter headquarters.

He owned two magnificent boats, the launch "Doozie," an elegantly equipped and sumptuously furnished craft, and the smaller launch "Bug." In these Mr. Ellwood made frequent fishing and pleasure excursions to headwaters of the St. Johns, usually being accompanied by Capt. H. Y. Snow and other friends, or members of his family.

Mr. Ellwood was advanced in years, being from 76 to 78 years old. He had several mild symptoms of paralysis, the last one troubling him some on the occasion of his last appearance in Palatka, the day of the bridge opening celebration, which he attended and enjoyed.

INTERLACHEN ITEMS.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held in the new Reading and Rest Room, was well attended, and a good program was carried out. In the absence of the president, Mrs. S. J. Townsend presided at this session.

Rev. S. J. Townsend was absent Sunday, having gone to fill his monthly appointment at Grove Park, and therefore there was no church service in the Congregational church. Rev. Collier held services in the M. E. church.

Miss Emma Wylie was quite seriously indisposed several days of last week and unable to discharge her school duties. During her illness Miss Winifred Wylie filled her place as teacher of the primary department.

Miss Clarence Frazer has accepted an appointment to teach the Satsuma school this year. Miss Frazer will have been the third teacher from Interlachen to be located at Satsuma, Miss Coburn having been the first away back in the early nineties, and Miss Jean Baillie followed Miss Coburn.
